

BOSTON MORNING POST.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 12, 1837.

33. Never were the prospects of the democratic party brighter than they are this present moment. Never, since the days of Jefferson, have the people seen such conclusive proof of the importance of democratic measures, as are furnished at this day, by the solemn picture which our country presents, struggling like an infant Hercules, under the weight of misery brought upon it by the bank party.—

Assimilation of Society.—Society is perfected by the gradual assimilation of its members to one another, in their habits, customs and opinions—and the greater this assimilation, other things being equal, the more perfect will be the state of the society. At the birth, and during the infancy of a nation, its society is generally composed of very discordant materials, especially when the emigrants or colonists are from different nations. They bring with them the feelings, prejudices, language, manners and customs of their respective countries; and they possess few feelings in common, except those which arise from their novel situation and circumstances. They will become gradually assimilated, as several languages, entirely different in their structure, will, under certain circumstances, become gradually incorporated into one language. Yet this new and compound language will be many centuries in acquiring perfection. The English language is an instance in point. It is composed of Latin, Greek and a variety of modern dialects amalgamated with the ancient Saxon. Hence, it partakes partly of the structure of all; and possesses, as yet, no very regular grammatical construction. Centuries will yet elapse before it will acquire the regularity of the Greek or the Latin. Society is formed in a manner similar to the formation of language. If the members of it are derived from the same stock, if they emigrated from the same country, all their affairs will proceed in comparative harmony. Their habits, opinions and prejudices will be similar. There will be no religious animosities, no enmities proceeding from contrariety of feelings. On the other hand, if the first settlers emigrated from different countries—their assimilation must take place after their colonization. They will not readily unite in regulating the national affairs, except when their common interest evidently demands it. They will possess no unity of feeling except that which arises from a sense of their common interest. There will be continual bickerings, contentions and controversies among them, arising from the diversity of those habits, customs and opinions, which they brought with them respectively from their native land. The second generation will partake in a considerable degree of their parents' prejudices, but they will be more alike each other than the original emigrants. In this way they will gradually assimilate, if emigration is stopped—but so long as there is a tide of emigration flowing in upon them, this desirable event will be checked.

A writer in the last Foreign Quarterly speaks in terms of condemnation of the practice among his own countrymen, of slavishly imitating ancient models in architecture, and considers America as the only nation that is likely to strike out an original path for itself. The writer's remarks are as follows:—"We should point to America as almost the only country where an entirely new and independent style of architecture could take root and thrive, and where it could freely accommodate itself to all the exigencies of a community who have no violent prejudices and partialities to break through before they could admit it. What would elsewhere be apt to be scooped as extravagant innovation, and a dereliction of good taste, would there incur no such danger. Of Gothic Architecture, America possesses nothing whatever; it has neither cathedrals, nor abbies; neither castles nor baronial mansions; and what samples it possesses of Greek, Roman, or Italian, are neither so numerous nor so excellent as to cause an abandonment of them as models to be considered presumptuous. There would also be this advantage, that, owing to the absence of Gothic architecture, there would be little danger of borrowing from that style, while departing from the others. At any rate, it must be allowed that, unless it be obstinately bent in rivaling the old world in the architecture it has derived from it, in preference to making any original efforts of its own, that country affords the most favorable opportunities for such efforts and experiments, with the greatest probability of their being attended with ultimate success."

The following—from the Koran—are Mahomets regulations with respect to wives—

1. Never marry idolatrous women, unless they will become believers. A Mussulman servant is better than an idolatrous woman, though of the highest rank.
2. Wives shall conduct themselves towards their husbands, as their husbands conduct themselves towards them.
3. You may separate yourself from your wife twice; but if you divorce her a third time, it must be forever; you must either keep her humanely or put her away kindly.—You are permitted to keep anything from her which you have given her.
4. Good wives are obedient and attentive even in the absence of their husbands. If your wife is prudent, be careful not to have any quarrel with her; but if one should happen, let an arbiter be chosen from your own family, and one from hers.
5. Take one or two or three or four, but never more. But if you doubt your ability to act equitably towards several, take only one. Give them a suitable dowry, take care of them, and speak to them always like a friend.
6. You are not permitted to inherit from your wife against her will; nor to prevent her from marrying another after her divorce, in order to possess yourself of her dowry, unless she has been declared guilty of some crime. When you choose to separate yourself from your wife and take another, you must not, though you have even given her a talent at your marriage, take anything from her.

It is not true that Mahomet excludes women from Paradise. So able a man did not choose to enbroider himself with that half of the human race by which the other half is led. Abulbeda relates that an old woman one day importuned him to tell her what she must do to get into paradise. "My good lady," said he, "paradise is not for old women." The good woman began to weep, but the prophet consoled her by saying, "There will be no old women, because they will become young again."—This consolatory doctrine is confirmed in the fifty-fourth chapter of the Koran.

For the Boston Morning Post.
C. G. Greene, Esq.—Your remarks in Monday's Post (in reference to the course pursued by nearly all of the banks in this City, in exacting specie from the debtor to the bank for the fractions of a dollar) are highly commendable and I hope they will be put in practice. What can be more contemptible than a bank, which by its character is declared forfeited, refusing to pay a customer the paltry sum of twenty or fifty cents but subjecting him to the inconvenience of being obliged to borrow it of A or B? Nearly every bank in this City that has pursued this course, the public have been apprised of by the Press, and this is as it should be. It has had the effect of making some of the older banks give it up. There is one bank I have not seen in print that still pursues this course, the Market Bank.

INDIA WHARF.

Water Excursion.—An excursion is contemplated by the proprietors of the Steamer Bangor on Thursday next, to Plymouth and Sandwich, if subscribers enough can be obtained. In the latter place there is a pleasant and commodious Hotel. Those who wish to have a fine time will do well to improve this opportunity. Music which will make one's heart leap for joy, will be provided for the occasion. For further particulars call on Mr Goodrich, Steamboat wharf.

ON HAND.

The first section in the new Rules adopted by the City Government for the regulation of the Fire Department, prohibits any one from becoming a member of the Department unless he is a native citizen. This regulation has excited surprise and regret, and seems to us a most unjust and unnecessary reflection upon our naturalized citizens. We have trusted the land of our armies to a Montgomery, a Hamilton, a Lafayette, a Steuben, a De Kalb, a Halifax, and a host of other foreigners, whose feelings and principles made them our brothers and co-laborers in the great effort to achieve the independence of America. The Declaration of that Independence was signed by a Witherspoon, a Floyd, a Smith, a Taylor, a Wilson, and a Gwinnett, and other foreigners by birth, but fellow-citizens with Washington, Franklin, Jefferson and Hancock, and who assumed with them an equal risk in the great contest then waged against tyranny. Gallatin and Hamilton have held the highest posts in our government, save the Presidency, and yet if they were now inhabitants of Boston, with Lafayette and those we have mentioned with him, and the signers of the Declaration of Independence just named, they would all be deprived of the privilege of belonging to the Fire Department! The absurdity and injustice of the provision in question is too palpable to require further illustration, and we hope that the City Government will have the good sense to repeal it at once.

One of our Correspondents is mighty wrath because the Board of Directors paint every thing green about the Farm School. He says—
"Every thing is beautiful there but the paint—and that is horrible in the extreme. Only think of it, sir, a finely proportioned portico, supported by four lofty fluted columns, painted green! Green window frames—green fences, and the main edifice, located on the most commanding eminence in Boston harbor, also stained as green as a cabbage! as though the original design were to favor the weak eyes of a fool of asses. With its green gloom, as cheerless and forbidding as the vault of a rag-shaving bank, the whole establishment participates instead of delighting the spectator, his mercury falls to zero in being compelled to acknowledge that the city of Boston contains within its chartered limits, a board of managers of a public charitable institution, even more completely destitute of taste in the fine arts, than the Athenæum picture gathery."

But Mr. Editor, the true poet of nature, who was neither Wilis nor any one of the Suffolk delegation of school-cholinder poetasters, expressly declared in the majesty of genius, that

"Jack Spratt
Luv'd fat—
But his wife loved lean,"— showing very clearly that no two possess precisely the same standard of taste: in other words, different folks fancy different kinds of paint. This illustration, sir, although nothing to the purpose, in the Insurance office where I always hang on from morning till night, year in and year out, is considered remarkable happy.

Thine in kindness,
KROUT & Co.

The author of "Vivian Grey," in his late work "Vivian," makes the following remarks, which are as applicable to America as to England—

"It has been well observed, that no spectacle is so ridiculous as the British public, in one of its periodical fits of morality. In general, elopements, divorces, and family quarrels, pass with little notice. We read the scandal, talk about it for a day, and forget it. But once in six or seven years, our virtue becomes outrageous. We cannot suffer the laws of religion and decency to be violated. We must make a stand against vice. We must teach liberties that the English people appreciate the importance of domestic ties. Accordingly, some unfortunate man, in no respect more depraved than hundreds whose offences have been treated with lenity, is singled out as an expiatory sacrifice. If he has children, they are to be taken from him. If he has a profession, he is to be driven from it. He is cut by the higher orders, and hissed by the lower. He is, in truth, a sort of whipping boy, by whose vicarious agonies all the other transgressors of the same class are, it is supposed, sufficiently chastised. We reflect very complacently to our own severity, and compare, with great pride, the high standard of morals established in England, with the Parisian laxity. At length, our anger is satiated—our victim is ruined, and heart-broken—and our virtue goes quietly to sleep for seven years more."

North Carolina.—A letter from Warrenton, of the 6th inst. published in the Globe, announces the re-election of Gen Micajah T. Hawkins to Congress in the sixth district, which comprises the counties of Warren, Granville, Franklin, and Nash. The votes stood as follows:—

Micajah T. Hawkins, (V. B.) 1949
Joseph L. Machlin, (V. B.) 895
John L. Henderson, (W.) 762
Democratic majority 2844—this will do pretty well.

One more County in Mississippi is heard from, (Madison) which last November gave a whig majority 432—now the whigs have only 234 majority there! Poor comfort for their aching hearts.

John O. Sargent, Esq., who has been for several years an associate editor of the Atlas, has taken up his connection with that establishment and gone into the office of the New York Courier and Enquirer. Mr Sargent is a gentleman of talents, but a most unconscionable whig. We wish him success in every thing but his politics.

It was remarked at the solemnization of the royal marriage at Fontainebleau, that the persons invited seemed to have been gathered out of the chaos of defunct administrations; being composed of politicians of all parties;—prelates of every sect. The Duke of Orleans was as eager for the marriage as if it had been a love-match of his own selection.

The Washington (Pa.) Examiner says that a woman by the name of Pratt, and married, has been committed to prison in Greene County, in that State, charged with producing the death of her own child (about three months old) by wilful neglect and starvation.

There are only two stations in the United States to which citizens, not natives, are ineligible, in this country—viz: The Presidency of the United States and the Boston Fire Department, so says our Mayor.

The alarm of fire between three and four o'clock yesterday morning, was owing to the partial burning of a shed in the rear of the brick block in Beacon street, near the mill-dam. It was the work of an incendiary.

Cleaver, the sculptor, has gone to Lexington, to take a bust of Mr Clay. Mr Clay had so many "busts" in his youth, we should not think that he would want one at this late day.

The Duchess of Kent gave a concert just before the King's death—wonder if there was enough in the house to pay the expenses?

"Were you wounded in the wars?" asked a man of a little drummer. "O, yes, waddy," replied he. "In what part were you shot?" "Oh, sir, I was shot in the drum."

Dr Muse, of Dorchester Co., Maryland, is cultivating with great success the sugar beet.

A loan for the completion of the Stonington Railroad has been negotiated with the Bank of the United States.

Duelling by the Wholesale.—Mr Gibson, editor of the New Orleans American, a gentleman, we believe, well versed in duelling matters, proposes in the present rage for that species of combat at New Orleans, to settle the accumulated contentions and difficulties of every kind by the wholesale, thus—

"We invite all and several of those would-be heroes, to register their names, immediately, at the office of the True American, as we purpose, as soon as the list is sufficiently full, to charter a couple of handsome clipper-built schooners, very capable of running away in case of need.—These schooners we propose to man with these gentlemen at arms, so that they may have an opportunity, as they are bent on a fight, of having it out, not with poor, paltry pistols, but with respectable full sized swivels. In one of these we propose to ship the bullies, the loafers, and loungers, and shall call them the Mosquito, as these insects are well known as the pests of our southern clime. In the other we intend to embark all those intended victims who are generally challenged because it is thought they will not fight, but mostly proving the best men, we shall call their schooner the Fire-away. The principals are to be kept down below, and the seconds are to man the gun-deck, for being the parties generally most to blame, they ought to stand the breast of the shot. Gentlemen who are anxious to fight on horseback, will be allowed to bring their cattle along with them, provided their broadswords are not longer than the gun-deck. When a sufficient number shall be enrolled, we purpose ourselves to take the command of the "Fire away," and offer the other to any Local Editor who will leave off abusing the city and the laws, and take a quiet fight upon the lake in a genteel wholesale way. By this plan every gentleman will be enabled to pick out his particular friend, and settle all disputes about borrowed money, games of billiards, &c. by a round of grape—though perhaps he had better do the same thing over a social bottle."

From the New Orleans Commercial Herald, Aug. 20.
Senor P. Pizarro Martinez, formerly Mexican consul for this port, has been appointed minister plenipotentiary to the United States.

We learn from a gentleman who came passenger in the Harriet, that Major Lynch, of Texas, has been shot in a duel. His antagonist was arrested, and will be tried for manslaughter. The law against duelling in Texas is very severe, and may catch the flies, but the spiders will break through it. The first duel fought after the passage of the law was between Generals Johnson and Houston, and no notice whatever was taken of it.

The recent arrival of several vessels from New Orleans has completely stocked the market with lard, which is dull, at a reduction of former rates.

The fever still continued, but not with the same fatal results has heretofore experienced. Gen. Tacon's wife and energetic measures were every day more clearly evidenced, and Havana was represented as being more peaceable than New Orleans!

The British packet Seagull arrived here on the 26th from Tampico, with $200,000 in specie, for England.

Deplorable Occurrence.—Mrs Catharine Beard, wife of Mr Beard the well known chief engineer of the Novelty Works, put an end to her existence yesterday morning, during a fit of insanity occasioned by sickness. About 5 weeks since she gave birth to an infant; and her confinement was followed by an attack of intermittent fever. When the fever raged she was wholly deranged; and it is supposed that it was under the influence of one of those paroxysms, that she left her bed at an early hour yesterday morning, and precipitated herself into the cistern attached to her residence, No 343 Seventh street, where she was drowned. Her nurse and infant were sleeping in a bed beside her's, but she made her escape so noiselessly as not to awake either of them, and her absence was not known till after daylight, when Mr Beard came into her room to inquire after her health. After a fruitless search about the house, a descent was made into the cistern, which was nearly full of water, by Mr Isaac Webb, who resides next door, and who first discovered her situation by feeling her body at the bottom with his feet. Mrs B. was a native of Pennsylvania, 34 years of age, and has left five children.—N. Y. Sun.

Old King Cole, a jolly old soul, is no fictitious character. He flourished, according to tradition, 300 years before Christ, and was one of the petty chiefs, or kings in Britain. Ayrshire has enjoyed, undisturbed, the honor of containing the cemetery of King Cole, or Coil, and the names of localities in the vicinity of his reputed burial place, strengthen the tradition. In Colfield is a mound, planted with oak and other trees, and encircled with a hedge. Two large stones on its summit were said to mark the grave, and some curious gentlemen recently excavated and examined it. At the depth of four feet they came to a flag stone of circular form, about three feet in diameter. This stone was lifted up, and under it was found a quantity of dry, yellow, sandy clay, then a small flag stone laid horizontally, covering the mouth of an urn, filled with what were believed to be the ashes of the illustrious dead. The trolers of the old catch may now put on a heavier vocal power than ever; for since it is certain that there was an old king Cole, imagination will not have so hard a task in supplying his pipe and his bowl, and his triplets of musicians, as if we had to draw on faith for a master for them, too.—N. Y. Sun.

Dreadful Stage Accident.—A gentleman who has just arrived from the West, informs us that on Tuesday morning a stage coach going West, when near the top of a hill seven miles this side of Hancock, Md., fell off a perpendicular precipice of forty feet. There were in the coach Mrs Clark, a widow, of Louisville, Ky., her daughter, Mr Walter, and a colored woman and her two children, servants of Mrs Clark. Mrs C. was killed and one of the colored children. Mr Walter was supposed to be mortally wounded, and the others, together with the driver, very badly injured. The stage was broken to atoms and the horses killed. Our informant saw the wreck lying at the foot of the precipice. The driver had no lights, which neglect was probably one cause of the accident.—N. Y. J. Com.

"The universal currency of the country at this moment is PAPER—PAPER OF LOCAL BANKS.—Slaves and savages—the citizens of Spain and Turkey, and Africa, are the only people who use any other; and till we are reduced to the condition of Africa, Turkey, and Spain, we shall continue to use a paper currency."—Boston Atlas.

This was the language of the whig press but a few weeks ago, since which time, however, they have changed their ground, and now claim that Mr Webster's "hard money" principles are their principles. Mr Webster said at Niblo's that he "abhorred paper," and straightway the federalists "abhor" it, and are all at once willing to agree that we had better be "reduced to the condition of Africa, Turkey, and Spain," to slaves and savages," than not. This is jumping Jim Crow with a vengeance.—Eastern Argus.

Whipwreck.—Bad luck and good luck.—The fine bark MARLBOROUGH, belonging to Mr R. C. Hooper, with a cargo of white sugars, from Matanzas for St Petersburg, was totally lost August 2d, in a hurricane on the Bahama Banks. The crew had only time to escape in the long boat, and just as they got alongside the brig Howell, the boat sank with the clothes, &c., of the captain and crew. There were $62,000 insured in this loss, and $33,000 in New York, on ship and cargo. The brig Howell had also struck on the same reef, and had no person on board but the cook and boy. She had been sent to Cape Florida, and the captain and the crew of the crew left her thinking she was sinking. The crew of the Marlborough, cut away the brig's masts, and worked at the pumps all night—next day they stopped the leak, rigging jury masts, and got into Charleston on the 7th, with her cargo safe.—Trans.

Shocking Accident.—We learn that a wagon containing ten kegs and about fifty canisters of gun powder, was placed under a shed in Plainfield, one day last week. It appears that one keg had been opened, and that some powder had been spilled upon the floor of the shed. An individual, carelessly, without being aware of his presumption, applied a coal of fire to the powder on the floor, when, shocking to relate, the powder in the wagon ignited, and the result was, five men were so severely wounded, and leave serious doubts of their recovery. The wagon and shed were torn to atoms; the explosion was heard at a considerable distance. What could induce an individual of common capacity to carry fire to the wagon, is more than we can divine.—Hampshire Republican.

If any one wishes to learn all the beauties of the ship-plaster system, let him go to Philadelphia. Under the patronage of the corporation and one Nicholas Biddle, they go it there on a grand scale. You can have plaster of any denomination from the ostensible value of a picanee up to eighty-seven and a half coppers, payable—the Lord knows where and when—if it be known at all—for the holders on this head, are in a quandary.—Fall River Patriot.

The pilot boat Virginia, boarded the ship Rhode Island, from New Orleans bound to Cowes, loaded with tobacco, three and a half feet water in her hold, put into this port in distress. Her Captain at the point of death, and 2d officer sick.—Savannah Georgian.

MECHANICS' FAIR.—To be held in FANEUIL HALL, and QUINCY HALL, in September next.

The Board of Managers of the MECHANICS' FAIR, which commences in Boston on Monday, the 18th of September next, respectfully give notice to the Mechanics, Artizans, and Manufacturers throughout the country, that the City Authorities have kindly granted them the use of Faneuil Hall, and that Messrs Livermore & Kendall, the Lessees of Quincy Hall, have politely relinquished for a few weeks one half of their extensive rooms to facilitate the objects of the Fair.

Mr THOMAS HOYT, has been appointed by the Managers, General Superintendent of the Fair, and may be found daily at Quincy Hall, to receive and register all articles sent in; and he will cause to be so arranged as to give every visitor an opportunity of judging of the respective merits of each. PARKER'S PATENT STEAM-FOUNTAIN COFFEE POT, made in Tin and Copper—varying in the capacity of the pot from half an ounce to two pounds, and making coffee superior to any other method—all excepted—without less trouble—and with great economy.
The following extract, in reference to the above, is from the Examiner, December 29, 1833.
"Business of life is there in which steam will not have a part? Besides working our cotton-mills, and propelling our boats and carriages, printing our books, and laboring for us in a thousand other ways, behold it now on our breakfast tables, making our coffee! Nothing is too great or too small for its potent and subtle agency. Science is chiefly busied with the art of procuring for the common use, a safe and convenient, and generally useful is the 'Steam-Fountain-Coffee pot.' This little machine exhibits a beautiful simplicity of action. Every thing good in the barry is extracted, without alloy from the unwholesome matter, which is more or less mixed with all coffee made by the common method. At the same time nothing is wasted in the process, which is also expeditions. A clear and pure essence is produced, small indeed in quantity at first, but of such strength that it may be diluted with milk or water so as to suit the various tastes of consumers, as well as adults, may take the Elixer with perfect safety, and being obviously only a first step in a wide field of improvement, the principle will assuredly be applied with great success to the brewing of beer, and all other operations in which a liquid extract is made from any kind of vegetable substance?"
A few of the above, just received at the London Importing Warehouse, 36 Cornhill, late Market street.
